

Preoccupation with the composition, placement, embellishment, elaboration of words, their constitutive parts, and their ultimate intention to address forcefully is most usually associated with the progenitive impulse of Dada.